THEY LEAVE FOR THEIR HOMES TOMORROW

The Governor and His Staff Will Visit the Georgia Legislature This Morning at the Capitol.

The loyal sons of the Keystone State are the guests of the Empire State of the South.

Governor Daniel H. Hastings, accompanied by his staff and the commissioners from Pennsylvania, reached Atlanta early yesterday morning. The party came in on a special train from Chattanooga and arrived at 5 o'clock.

Yesterday was Pennsylvania day at the exposition and the Pennsylvania building was filled with distinguished guests. Standing in the shadow of the old Liberty bell and beneath the fluttering flag of the union, Governor Hastings extended his hand to the governor and his staff, who were the governor and his staff, who were the state commissioners and their wives. The party occupied carriages, with the exception of the governor and staff, who rode on a tally-ho. The line of carriages was very long and reached several blocks. Many spectators on the sidewalks and watched the parade as it passed. As the governor and staff would pass the crowds would wave their handkerchiefs and cheer down Wilson avenue to the entrance.

The parade was led by the Fifth Georgia Regiment band, which was followed by the Governor's Horse Guards and the Press Cadets of Pittsburgh.

The Cadets are an excellent body of men and attracted much attention on the part of spectators.

The uniform is light blue and they made a good appearance.

The Cadets were under command of Captain Henderson and Lieutenant Little.

HUFF MAY RUN.

If He Does, Macon's Municipal Campaign
Will Be Lively.

JUDGE KIBBEE NOT IN THE FACE

The Municipal Fight Seems To Be Absorbing the Attention of the Town—Other News Notes.

Macon, Ga., November 14.—(Special)—In the light of all probability Colonel W. A. Huff will be a candidate for mayor. His name has been associated with the mayoralty race more prominently lately than any one except the announced candidates for the office and when the Constitution's correspondent asked the colonel about his rumored candidacy today he smiled and said that he didn't know what he might or might not do. Said he:

"I have not yet given much thought to the subject, and can't give you any definite answer yet at all."

He was asked that his friends are bringing his name into very prominent connection with the mayoralty race, and said:

"Yes, I have been spoken to about running, but really I will have to put you off for a definite answer. I must think over the matter a great deal more before I can make up my mind. I should decide to 'shy his castor into the ring' there is no doubt about a most exciting campaign resulting therefrom, and what he will do is now the political item of the town."

Horn Is Willing.

The complexion of the political horizon here today indicates that mayor Henry Horn will be a candidate for the office. This announcement will come in the nature of a great surprise to the general public as the impression has gone out and on the major's former statement, that he would not run for the office.

But a change of mind is a warrantable thing, especially when an office of the importance of mayor is in question. It is in view, and this seems to be just what Mr. Horn is now on the point of doing.

One reason that Mr. Horn has had for not indulging any aspirations he may have had all along has been the uncertainty of the changes the election will effect on the city hospitals of Augusta, and was simply here looking after his extensive farming interests, and as he did not know of any particular candidate and considered that he had only acted the part of a peacemaker, he went home.

ROME'S LATEST FIGHT.

Status of the Turner-McCall Case in Rome, Ga., November 14.—(Special)—The case against Captain Dallas Turner and Dr. T. McCall were continued by Recorder Spurlock until Tuesday.

The case has been the all-absorbing topic since the fight between the men, and people have been the qui vive for further developments, as both men are of reputed fighting qualities.

The causes that led to the fight grew out of certain settlements of the estate of the late Hon. John W. Turner, father of Captain Dallas Turner, Dr. Henry Turner and Mrs. Dr. McCall.

Turner and McCall, being brothers-in-law, fell out and have been at odds ever since, in spite of repeated efforts to reconcile them to each other.

The fact that all places of business in Athens will be closed on that day will be widely advertised in this section and on the bulletin board of everybody in Athens will take a holiday.

The Commercial Club has appointed a committee consisting of Messrs. W. D. Griffith, William Fleming and E. L. Smith to secure the necessary transportation for the crowd to the fair, and to be on hand on the day. It is the intention of those behind the movement to carry to Atlanta Thanksgiving day not less than one thousand people and probably more than that number. About fifteen coaches in two sections will be run in all probability.

Commercial Club Officers.

At the annual meeting of the Commercial Club the following officers were elected for the ensuing term: President W. A. McDonald; vice president, W. D. Griffith; secretary, W. M. Crane; treasurer, C. A. Tammen; Directors, W. A. McDonald, J. H. McCall, W. D. Griffith, W. L. Johnson, W. K. Nicholson, J. S. Cowles and H. H. Crawford. The reports of officers showed the club to be in good financial condition with a membership of one hundred and twenty-seven of the leading citizens of Athens.

The State Normal School.

The annual joint convention of the general assembly visited the State Normal school yesterday. They were met at the depot by Rock College. Those who came to Athens were Senators Shepard, Sanford, Mercer and Boyd and Representatives Clegg, Boggs, and Lindsey. President Dr. Holt called a committee around the building and explained all the workings of the school to them. In brief it was found that the attendance was 142, representing sixty-three cities. Of these, the number 112 were at the dormitory and the general expenses average $4 per month. This includes good board, laundry, fuel and lights. The third floor of the college building is the ladies' dormitory and sixty-two young ladies sleep there, some having as many as seven roommates. Eighty of the young men are compelled to sleep in three little two-room houses near the college building.

President Bradwell explained the aims of the institution very clearly, the great need being dormitory room. Speeches were made by Senators Shepard and Boyd and Representatives Clegg, Boggs, and Lindsey, which they stated that they were delivered at the work being done by the State Normal school and expressed the desire that the state give the school all the dormitory and room facilities that will be sufficient dormitory room facilities to accommodate the teachers of the common schools of Georgia will afford them for normal training.

Benefit Entertainment.

Athens will have quite a number of benefit entertainments within the next week, including a benefit for the benefit of the Lucy Cobb exposition fund, Saturday, a luncheon will be given at Gilliland's cafe for the benefit of the Yarsity football club; next, week a chrysanthemum benefit will be held for the benefit of the building fund of Emmanuel Episcopal church; next Wednesday night the annual Harvest Home festival will be held for the benefit of the poor and Saturday week the Industrial Home will have a benefit day at Methvin's store.

DR. LANE III.

The many friends of Rev. Charles W. Lane, who died last week, will be gathered at his home in this city. Dr. Lane is the venerable pastor of the Presbyterian church, which position he has held for the past twenty-three years. He is universally beloved and his many friends unite in wishing for him a speedy recovery and many more years of useful life.

Newlyweds.

There was a wedding at the residence of the bride's parents in Bairdstown, Ga., occurred the marriage of Miss Julia Lawrence Wilson to Mr. Herbert Ernest Choate, of this city. Rev. Charles E. Choate, brother of the groom, officiated at the ceremony. The bride is the daughter of Dr. J. R. Choate, who is a member of the bar.

The bride is not hard-dressed as to sell her husband's clothes, but on the other hand it is equally as good if she is superior to any other city in the south. Its total indebtedness is only about 3% per cent of its assessed property valuation.

Mr. Minter Wimberly.

The opinion of Judge M. R. Freeman on the requirements of the office of city treasurer, rendered yesterday afternoon, defines most clearly the law and the demands of the new city charter. He was called on to advise the finance committee of the council in the absence of the city attorney, Mr. Minter Wimberly, and held that the city treasurer to collect the street tax did not make it incumbent on him to stand at the place of registration each day the books open and make a personal demand on the applicants for the tax. Of course the good government club people, whose petition the decision answers, are not at all well pleased with the judge's decision and one or two have gone so far as to brand it as a entirely unjust, however, as Judge Freeman could have had no object in so deciding the matter submitted to him.

Mr. Minter Wimberly.

It is learned here today that Judge Kibbee has written a letter declining to run on the good government club ticket for alderman from the first ward. There have been so many conflicting statements about Judge Kibbee's candidacy that it is a matter of general interest to know where he stands. It was generally conceded that he would accept the nomination of the good government club.

The Pistols Snapped.

The cartridge failed to fire, and Walker says that she remarked to him:

"Go on if you want to, but if you do 'll kill me, I'll kill myself, too. It will ruin me, fire the colt," said she, "till Mr. Briscoe comes home."

He said he must discharge his duty.

The girl, however, as she walked out with an ugly looking pistol in her hand and threw it upon him and pulled the trigger.

CLEVELAND MEN.

They Had a Royal Good Time at the Exposition Yesterday.

WILL BE CORDIALLY GREETED

Interesting and Informal Meeting Yesterday—Representative Citizens.

The representatives, 20 in number, from the chamber of commerce of Cleveland, O., visited the exposition yesterday and were royally entertained.

As was stated, yesterday morning the party reached the city by a special train which arrived late. They remained in their cars over night at the Air-Line hotel. During their stay here today and tomorrow the party will live in their cars, which make up a palace on wheels.

Cards have been sent to all of the party by the Piedmont Driving Club.

The chamber of commerce of Cleveland, as the representative body of that city, is made up of the best and most influential men there and has become a powerful factor in the upbuilding and advancement of that metropolis of the great lakes. Aside from this, with a great political influence, and made itself especially felt last April when the present chief executive was elected—Mayor Robert E. McKinley. It is for good government and pure politics.

The chamber of commerce was reorganized about three years ago with an auspicious future. Every member of the body here is a man of business and enjoys some distinction in his line or occupation.

The party came down on a special train of luxurious cars.

Warm and Cordial Welcome.

At 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon the Cleveland party was met at the Illinois building by Mayor Porter King and other Atlantians and given a warm welcome.

It was somewhat informal, but aroused an enthusiasm that was pleasing.

The exercises were opened by singing "America."

Charles T. Olney played a piano accompaniment.

Mr. M. H. Hobart, chairman of the programme committee of the Cleveland chamber of commerce, called the assembly to order. He said there were 200 citizens from Cleveland, representing the business industries of that city. They extended to Atlanta, the imperial city of the South, to Georgia, and the citizens of both fraternal greetings.

He expressed on behalf of the party his

MASSACHUSETTS.

THE OLD BAY STATE WILL CELEBRATE TODAY.

Speeches Will Be Made by Governor Greenhalge, President Collier and Others.

This is Massachusetts day at the exposition, and Governor Greenhalge and the large and distinguished delegation from that state are here to make the occasion one of great significance.

The governor and his staff reached the city yesterday morning, and are at the man, who may die, declares that the assault was committed by a rival for the girl's hand. No one has been arrested.

The remains of Samuel Roof were exhumed and will be examined by the coroner. It is charged that Roof was violently beaten in the Cleveland insane asylum, where he died.

Alexander Boxwell, speaker of the last house of representatives of Ohio, who wants to be chosen again, has been in town all day, laying his ropes for second choice of the Cuyahoga county delegation after Hon. Martin A. Dodge. He goes to Lieutenant General Schofield and wife are in the city. A big reception, at which one thousand attended, was given to them this afternoon by Mr. and Mrs. George Hoyt, of Euclid avenue.

TEXAS EXHIBIT DERAILED.

One Car Was Overturned, but the Display Is All Right.

Mobile, Ala., November 14.—(Special)—The Texas exhibit, bound for the Atlanta exposition, was delayed in this city several hours today on account of an accident at 2 o'clock this morning. The Louisville and Nashville passenger train north carried two cars of the display, and when pulling out from the union passenger depot encountered a defective car on Commerce street and one of the cars was completely overturned. W. W. Dexter, who was in charge of the exhibit, and his wife were asleep in the car at the time, but neither was injured in the wreck. The display was in no manner damaged.

BISHOP NELSON'S RECEPTION.

Bishop and Mrs. Nelson gave an unusually pretentious reception to their friends yesterday, previous to the opening of the exposition, which were exceedingly graceful and artistic. Pointed chrysanthemums were placed everywhere.

The mantels were completely hidden by a mass of yellow flowers and the light shining through yellow shades produced a wonderfully pretty effect. A tall cut glass vase of the most beautiful chrysanthemums.

Exercises will begin at 11 o'clock a. m., Massachusetts building.

mums was in the center of the table; no cloth was used and the pretty silver dishes, with bonbons and the silver candelabra all showed to the most perfect advantage.

Mrs. Nelson wore a lovely dress of black satin trimmed in jet. She is one of the handsomest women in Georgia. Bishop Holst is also very attractive, and together they make a most striking looking couple. About fifty women assisted in receiving and they were all magnificently dressed.

ATLANTA, GA., November 15, 1895.

The Constitution's Headquarters at the Exposition.

The Constitution is at home to its friends on the exposition grounds, as it is located on the south side of the grounds. It is located in front of a quantity of trees which stands at the foot of the big terrace staircase that leads from the Government building to the Manufactures and Woman's buildings. Representatives of both the business and trade are on the part of the exposition on duty in the building and will give a hearty welcome to all callers, whether on business or not. Telephone 567.

Welcome Our Visitors.

Governor Hastings and staff, of Pennsylvania, the Philadelphia Manufacturers' Club, the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce, the Louisville Board of Trade and Chamber of Commerce, the governors of Massachusetts and Rhode Island and their parties, the International League of Press Clubs and the Mississippi, Ohio and Michigan Press Associations, will be formally welcomed at 12 o'clock today at the auditorium by the exposition directors. The exercises will be held promptly at this hour and the event will be an interesting one.

The exposition directors are expected to be present and addresses will be made by distinguished representatives of each of these visiting delegations which have honored Atlanta and the exposition with their presence.

It is to be hoped that the auditorium will be well filled. Atlanta wishes to extend a cordial welcome to the representatives of the several states and the various delegations from prominent organizations throughout the country which are now here. A collective welcome will be tendered at today's meeting and the visitors will be made to feel that they are at home in Atlanta and that their presence is a source of much gratification to our people.

Without further notice all of the visiting delegations above named are expected to assemble in the auditorium at the exposition grounds at noon today. The ceremonies will be short and interesting, for it is simply intended that our visitors shall be given a warm how-do-and-don't made to understand that while in Atlanta they are with their friends.

A New Country.

Professor Bell, of the Canadian geological survey, has recently discovered in Canada a trace of vast extent covered with timber containing much good soil under a tolerable climate and drained by streams which combine to form the largest river in the province of Quebec, hitherto unknown. A part of this river is over a mile wide and very deep. The New York Sun says of it:

The region is a vast solitude. There is no record of previous visit by a white man. In general, it may be described as a rolling plateau about 1,000 feet above sea level, diminishing to some 400 feet at 100 miles or so from the coast. The soil is good, the climate is favorable, the timber is abundant, and the streams are numerous.

As Judge Crisp says, the south consents to have a platform made to suit Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Illinois, and these states do not help the democratic states to elect a president. We agree with Judge Crisp, and every honest democrat will agree with him that the views of those people who elect the president ought to control in the convention that nominates a president. And it will come to that pass at last if the party leaders expect the nominees of conventions to receive a hearty support from those whose support is essential.

Such flagrant injustice cannot long survive. The democrats who suffer from its infliction will not tolerate it much longer, and there is no reason why they should. All that is necessary is that the women want to vote they will vote just as they do pretty much everything else that strikes their fancy. No advocate of woman suffrage can fail to see that the matter is in the hands of the women themselves. When they wanted hoop skirts they wore them. When they didn't want hoop skirts they discarded them, and so it has been in all things since the beginning. Women has her way.

A great many serious-minded women are already in favor of woman suffrage, but they will have to convert the giddy, the weak and the frivolous-minded before they can carry this point, and this, as our northern contemporary suggests, will take time. If all the women were in favor of voting they would vote. The men would be enthusiastically in favor of it.

Just now there is not one woman in ten thousand that desires to vote or that would vote if the ballot box were stuck under her nose. This being the case the woman suffragists, instead of appealing to legislatures, should go to work and convert their own sex.

The Question of Harmony.

The St. Louis Republic is daily making tremendous pleas for party harmony. The idea of harmony is good one for it is one of the essentials of party success, and without party success the principles for which the party stands cannot be put in operation.

This is of course understood by all, but before we go into a flutter about harmony let us understand what it means. Take the case of the St. Louis Republic for instance. What does it mean by its constant and strenuous appeals for party harmony? What kind of harmony does it want?

We remember very well that a few months ago The Republic was making a strong fight for the restoration of silver, a fight that the democratic party has been carrying on for twenty-five years. We remember that The Republic gave up that fight and arranged its affairs so as to accept the republican policy of silver demonetization at the dictation of the administration. These are but matters of yesterday. But now The Republic is crying aloud for harmony.

Perhaps it will surprise many of our readers to learn that there are still vast unexplored regions in the world. There are 6,500,000 square miles in Africa, 2,250,000 in Australia, 2,000,000 in North and South America, 250,000 in Asia, 500,000 in various islands, 3,500,000 in the Arctic regions, 5,000,000 in the Antarctic regions, or a total of 20,000,000 square miles.

Here is a tempting field for explorers, and there seems to be plenty of room for home seekers.

The timber is good white and black spruce, pitch or Jack pine, tamarack, balsam, cedar, white birch, etc. It will come from the north. It is protected from the chilling influence of the Atlantic. It is capable of producing grain, hay and root crops in abundance.

There is one great drainage basin lying to the southwest of Jameson, which is drained by the Moose river. The new region is the corresponding area lying to the southeast of the bay, drained by the new river, which corresponds with the Moose.

Seeing that Canada's northwest has this year had a great number of grants of land, it is a good time for the new settlers of a new northeast to get in. The dominion is in no financial position to rush things in the way of opening transportation to this latest addition to her wheat fields, but it has to come in the fullness of time. The new settlers will want to observe, is about than from any of the other important fields that export by the north Atlantic.

These are the effects upon our agriculturalists when this new country is made accessible by railways and developed by enterprising immigrants? Grain, hay and lumber markets are bound to be seriously affected in the near future by the competition of this wonderful region, and in fact all agriculturists will be affected with the single exception of the cotton planters of the south.

Perhaps it will surprise many of our readers to learn that there are still vast unexplored regions in the world. There are 6,500,000 square miles in Africa, 2,250,000 in Australia, 2,000,000 in North and South America, 250,000 in Asia, 500,000 in various islands, 3,500,000 in the Arctic regions, 5,000,000 in the Antarctic regions, or a total of 20,000,000 square miles.

Here is a tempting field for explorers, and there seems to be plenty of room for home seekers.

The Core of the Matter.

Toward the close of his great speech before the legislature—a speech that was democratic and patriotic from beginning to end—Judge Crisp said:

Now what is the consequence of the single gold standard? It is the retirement of the $50,000,000 in paper money which is now in circulation in the United States. You cannot favor the single gold standard and oppose the retirement of the money, or there will be endless change in the sale of bonds can be perfectly forced. Therefore, if you favor the gold standard, you necessarily favor the further contraction of the currency by the retirement of about five hundred million dollars worth of gold. And if you do not favor it, John are you prepared to say that this outstanding non-interest-bearing debt now circulating as money shall be retired, shall be funded at a cost of $15,000,000 a year interest, and that the national banks shall have the privilege alone of supplying the vacuum? You are right in making a platform according to their own standard, because irreversibly it will carry you there. (Applause.) You will find that the advocates of that plan are devising some scheme to retire this money, and if you will look to Massachusetts you will find a democratic platform advocating the withdrawal of it. That is one of the troubles, my friends. Just between you and me, it is one of the great troubles that the democratic states that cast democratic electoral votes have not yet right in making a platform according to their own standard. (Applause.) You make a platform to suit Massachusetts and she does not give you an electoral vote. You make a platform to suit Pennsylvania, Ohio and Illinois, and they do not help to elect a man upon it. I believe that the great republican party is right in the sense that the people who elect the president ought to control the convention which nominates the president. (Great applause.) And if that is treason, why, convict me of it. (Applause.)

Now here is the core both of the financial and political situations, and it is no wonder that Speaker Crisp's audience rose to its feet when he laid the matter bare. If we are to maintain the single gold standard the government paper money must be retired. The only way that it can be retired is by the issue of bonds which will cost the people $15,000,000 a year in interest.

When this is done the national banks will demand—they have already demanded—that they be given the right to fill the vacuum with paper issues of their own guaranteed by the government. We shall then have the currency of the country in the absolute control of comparatively a few corporations which by means of their associations can be contracted or expanded to suit their own purposes. This is undoubtedly the scheme by which the single gold standard is to be bolstered up. It is the core of the financial situation at this moment.

Nicaragua Canal Prospects.

It is rumored that the report of the Nicaragua canal commission declares that a canal across the Isthmus, via the Nicaragua route, is entirely feasible from an engineering point of view. The cost of the project is said to be about $110,000,000.

The route proposed by the commission is 173 miles long, three or four miles longer than the one mapped out by the canal company. The waterway will be supplied with locks, and the San Juan river and Lake Nicaragua will be employed, but the former will require considerable dredging and some dredging will be needed on the west coast of the lake.

How true this is let the history of the past thirty years testify. When the states which are dependent on a national convention and attempt to make a platform in accordance with the democratic views of the democratic voters they are met with the cry, "Oh, but you must fix this thing up to suit Massachusetts and Ohio and Pennsylvania. You people will vote the democratic ticket any way; so we must fix this thing up to suit those who won't vote the ticket unless the platform suits them."

In this way the safe democratic states of the country have been grubbed and their views floated ever since the war. Matters were different in the old days, but now we have fallen on new times and men who believe in democratic principles and whose votes count for something in the electoral college must surrender their views and keep their hands off the party platform to placate men whose votes have never helped to elect a democratic president since the transaction has been completed.

No! There is no harmony in that sort of thing. The only grounds of real harmony are truth and justice and there can be no harmony over the attempt of a few men to force the democratic voters of the country to accept republican doctrines.

It is to be hoped that the auditorium will be well filled. Atlanta wishes to extend a cordial welcome to the representatives of the several states and the various delegations from prominent organizations throughout the country which are now here. A collective welcome will be tendered at today's meeting and the visitors will be made to feel that they are at home in Atlanta and that their presence is a source of much gratification to our people.

Such flagrant injustice cannot long survive. The democrats who suffer from its infliction will not tolerate it much longer, and there is no reason why they should. All that is necessary is for them to instruct their delegates to the national convention to stand on their rights. Then the whole business will be settled out of hand.

A Lesson in Forestry.

One of the most important juries at our great exposition was the one on forestry. Its chairman was Professor Garrison, of the Arnold Arboretum, Harvard university, the author of a magnificent work on "The Silva of North America," and his colleagues were the following well-known forestry experts: Charles Mohr, of Mobile, Ala.; William M. Candy, the well-known botanist of Wilmington, Del.; Henry Trimble, of Pennsylvania, an authority on tannins, John Birkine, of Pennsylvania, and Gifford Pinchot, of New York.

These distinguished gentlemen have made a special report which is of so much significance that it is proper to give a portion of it to the public in advance of the official publication in order to attract attention to an evil and a danger which are apparent to those who have made a study of our forests.

These jurors say that maps and statistics forming parts of exhibits submitted to the jury in forestry furnish evidence of the importance of forestry in this country, but also afford a warning of the exception of the magnificent deciduous and coniferous forests of the south. To this evidence, substantiated as it is by the personal experience of the jury, is added the remedy for the condition it discloses. An analogous condition in nearly all others parts of the country is within the experience of this jury, which has extended to an examination of the forests of every country and region of the world.

THE World of Women

Yesterday afternoon was a gay one in the woman's building, crowded as it was with press people. The Pen and Pencil Club was there in full force, taking notes on the building, and the comments in regard to everything were most enthusiastic.

The newspaper women especially seemed perfectly delighted with the building and with the southern women whom they had met. The programme rendered under the auspices of the International Press League in the assembly hall was largely attended and the readings and talks were crisp and clever.

Mrs. Gordon's Welcome.

Mrs. Louie M. Gordon, chairman of women's congress and honorary vice president of the International Press League, made the opening address, and in her usually cordial and graceful manner welcomed the visiting guests, and in introducing Miss Janey Mulhern Coard, chairman of the day, said:

"The assembling of the International League of Press Clubs in Atlanta is at once a benefit to our city and the exposition. We feel that we honor ourselves in having with us this strong and helpful body, which fosters and manages what the world long ago recognized as one of its greatest powers—the united press. Atlanta herself owes a lasting debt to the good will and admiration of the editor clan, and our beautiful exposition has risen to the top wave of success on the friendly tide of newspaper enthusiasm.

A federation of forces is a power indeed. The influence of this great press league reaches from the blue waves of the Atlantic to the 'Golden Gate' of the west, and unites the shining north with the glowing south in one golden flood of friendly intercourse. The originator of these federated clubs and their first honored president, Hon. Thomas J. Keenan, of Pennsylvania, can but feel that the thought that suggested the unions had the light of inspiration back of it, so worldwide and forceful has the International Press League proved itself to be.

A southern president was chosen by the league at its fourth annual meeting, and our own popular and able Clark Howell, of The Atlanta Constitution, led the International Press Clubs still onward and upward in their brave career. Mr. Howell's successor, the present excellent and well-known president, Mr. Lewis Megaree, is the third strong and brilliant officer of the league to be chosen during his administration the same broad and progressive policy has characterized the life of the association. The section and the city can but count themselves fortunate in securing the interest and presence of such distinguished visitors, and the southern press is gratified to see each other today on this happy and memorable occasion. In the name of both allow me the pleasure of extending the most cordial and heartfelt of southern greetings and welcomes to each member of the International League of Press Clubs. Mrs. Louie M. Gordon, chairman of the day, Miss Janey Mulhern Coard, the brilliant president of the Pittsburgh Woman's Press Club, who for nearly two years has been a steadfast advocate and friend of our woman's department of the 'exposition' and who never fails to write so much to awaken a deep and helpful interest in our work for woman. To our homes and hearts we welcome her and the members of the league."

Miss Coard Presides.

Miss Coard has been the chairman for this congress since it was decided for the league to meet in Atlanta and in organizing their forces and arranging the program she has done herself the brilliant woman that she is. She is the editor of the woman's department of The Pittsburgh Bulletin and has written a great many fine poems and stories. She made a short extemporaneous address full of well expressed sentiments in regard to the progress of women in journalism and spoke enthusiastically of the work accomplished by women for this great enterprise.

Concluding her short and graceful talk she introduced Mr. Clark Howell, president of the International League of Press Clubs.

Mr. Howell extended a heartfelt welcome to the delegates of the press and eloquently expressed his pleasure at being able to address them in a building erected through the energy and industry of southern women. He referred in grateful and appreciative terms to the generous assistance accorded the exposition by the international press and concluded with an eloquent tribute to women in journalism.

Mrs. Thompson's Welcome.

At the conclusion of Mr. Howell's address Miss Coard introduced Mrs. Joseph Thompson in an exquisite way, presenting her to the audience as the "fall high priestess of the noble work."

Mrs. Thompson, an exquisite address, which was received with great enthusiasm. It was an ideal address, thoroughly appropriate to the occasion.

The greatest applause greeted Margherita Arline Hamm when she appeared in the hall and was invited by Mrs. Gordon to the platform. She was a same beautiful and gracious little woman that came for the first time to Atlanta some weeks ago and won the hearts of the people not only by her enthusiastic writing in behalf of the woman's board, but by her beauty, brilliancy and charm of manner. Margherita Hamm, Miss Coard said: "It does me great pleasure to introduce Margherita Arline Hamm, the first woman war correspondent in the country, woman editor of Peterson's Magazine, editor of the woman's department of The Mail and Express, as well as being a correspondent for about a score of other magazines and journals. Wonderful, do you not think it, should go before her one considers the thousand and one topics of pressing interest which consume the editorial attention and often have better things to do."

"But the American woman of today has so blossomed out, intellectually, indeed, more than from those of previous generations. She has become the stanchest supporter of the press and relies upon its information, education and advice. The paper that moves toward her she will meet half way; the paper that wins her respect will have her more than half of her confidence."

"Furthermore, even today she is exerting a profound influence upon the tone and tendency of the press. She dislikes coarseness and brutality and will not read matter marked by those infirmities. As a result the more dignified style of writing that was once too common has passed away and is only to be found in fossil sheets which have not the sense to be buried decently in the earth and the cattle ranch. She dislikes indecency, cruelty, vice and bloodshed. She objects strongly to any scenes of those elements in her daily life and in her daily paper. She would forego some soul-stirring sensation or the report of her favorite sport to get a story that fixates with the account of a dog fight or the muddy details of a divorce suit. Her influence is bound to evade and profit the press as it profits pure and elevated every field into which it has entered. In the coming together of the American and English press, the object of today is to exert influence upon the other. The press, in giving greater attention to her needs and desire, serves as a power-grip in her education and should in turn give a higher moral character to the newspaper, a broader support and a wider and further-reaching circulation."

Three Appropriate Poems.

At the conclusion of Miss Hamm's clever address Miss Coard introduced Mrs. Maude Andrews Ohl, of The Atlanta Constitution.

Mrs. Ohl recited three original poems, the first a sonnet entitled "The Queen of Art," the second, "Interpreted," dedicated to Mrs. Joseph Thompson, and the third, a poem in dialect called "When the Major Leads the Babes," the subject inspired by that ideal southern gentleman, Major Livingston Mims, and calling forth most enthusiastic applause.

Mrs. Ohl was followed by Mrs. Elroy Avery, who read a wonderfully strong and interesting paper, and won high praise and hearty applause.

During the exercises in assembly hall yesterday afternoon Mrs. Harry D. Vought, by special request, sang several solos in a charming manner that had won the greatest admiration since her visit here.

Women as Humorists.

Mrs. Mary F. Fenn, Bayard, the well-known author of "The Little Shepherd," who has written many historical romances acquire new significance and meaning: some dwindle and shrink into dwarfs and microscopists, others grow and others swell and expand into magnificient entities. From this point of view the two greatest topics which can be submitted are the intelligence for study and discussion are the press and the modern woman.

"The new in turn becomes old and gives way to a still newer and higher growth; yet through this ever changing series of phases and developments in the field of man events, it is easy to discern great underlying principles, majestic iron laws, of power and a power behind all, which, as Matthew Arnold well said, makes for righteousness."

"Viewed along these lines the incidents of yesterday and today, the changes, the nations, the world, the various historical references acquire new significance and meaning: some dwindle and shrink into dwarfs and microscopists, others grow and others swell and expand into magnificient entities.
